

The Historie of

Hotsp. My Liege, I did deny no prisoners,
But I remember when the fight was done,
When I was drie with rage, and extreame toyle,
Breathlesse and faint, leaning vpon my sword,
Came there a certaine Lord, neate and trimly drest,
Fresh as a bridegroom, and his chin new reapt,
Shewd like a stubble land at haruest home:
He was perfumed like a Milliner,
And twixt his finger and his thumb he held
A pouncet boxe, which euer and anon
He gaue his nose, and took't away againe:
Who there-with angry, when it next came there:
Tooke it in snuffe, and still he smilede and talkt:
And as the souldiours bore dead bodies by,
He cald them vntaught knaues, vnmanerly,
To bring a slouely vnhandsome coarſe
Betwixt the wind and his nobilitie.
With many holy-day and ladie tearmes
He questioned me: among the rest demanded
My prisoners in your Maiesties behalfe.
I then, all smarting with my wounds being cold;
To be so pestred with a Poppingay,
Out of my griefe and my impatience
Answered neglectingly, I know not what,
He should, or he should not, for he made me mad:
To see him shine so briske, and sinell so sweete,
And talke so like a waiting gentlewoman,
Of guns, and drums, and wounds, God saue the markes.
And telling me the soueraignst thing on earth,
Was Parmacitie, for an inward bruiſe,
And that it was great pitie, so it was,
This villanous salpeeter should be digd
Out of the bowels of the harmeles earth,
Which many a good tall fellow had destroyed
So cowardly: and but for these vile guns,
He would himselfe haue bene a souldiour.
This balde vniointed chat of his (my Lord)
I answered indirectly (as I said)

Henrie the fourth.

And I beseech you, let not this report
Come current for an accusation,
Betwixt my loue and your high Maiestie.

Blunt. The circumstance considered, go
What e're Harry Percie then had said
To such a person, and in such a place,
At such a time, with all the rest retold,
May reasonably die, and neuer rise
To do him wrong, or any way impeach
What then he said, so he vnſay it now.

King. Why yet he doth deny his prisoners
But with prouiso and exception,
That we at our owne charge shall ransom
His brother in law, the foolish Mortimer,
VWho in my soule hath wilfully betraid
The liues of those, that he did lead to fight
Against the great Magitian, damned Glendow
Whose daughter, as we heare, the Earle of M
Hath lately married. Shall our coffers then
Be emptied to redeeme a traitour home?
Shall we buy treason, and indent with feares,
When they haue lost and forfeited themselues
No, on the barren mountaine let him starue:
For I shall neuer hold that man my friend,
Whose tongue shall aske me for one penny
To ransom home reuolted Mortimer.

Hot. Reuolted Mortimer?
He neuer did fall off, my soueraigne Liege,
But by the chance of war: to proue that true,
Needes no more but one tongue: for all those
Those mouthed wounds which valiantly he
VWhen on the gentle Seuerns siedgie bank
In single opposition hand to hand,
He did confound the best part of an houre,
In changing hardiment with great Glendow
Thrice times they breathd and three times dic
Vpon agreement of swift Seuerns flood,
VWho then affrighted with their blondie loo
